Prupe Your Vines. To the Editor of the Globe-R

It is surprising to see so many fine grape rines in this city, and with such little care bestowed upon them in the way of prope pruning. If the pruning necessary were given them, there would be a small demand for shipments here from other localities. It seems the chief desire in growing the vine at all is to secure a nice shade in some favorable place about the residence, or as an ornament. Some arbors are so covered with previous years' growths that a very good shade is made withthree-fourths of the vines growing in this city are as good a variety as can be procured anywhere, and that it can be proven by careful observation and attention to them. It is nostly through neglect that results are not as favorable as in some other apparently more favorable localities. Study the nature of your vines as you would that of your carriage animal, your children or your dog, and curb, dress and feed them accordingly. Some times the argument is heard that wild grape vines tention of any kind, and therefore it is needless to prune ours. So did the Indian live and the more we pruned him the poorer he became. But we are, or should wish to be, dealing with civilized vines, and should treat them rivilly. Yet should we desire to apply the same treatment to our American vines as Europeans do to theirs, we would go as far aside from the proper course as by the other way-"growing them wild." The European grapes have not yet been grown successfully on American soil. Linnaeus, the eminent potanist, says of it: "No plant in the vegetable kingdom possesses more interesting attributes, is cultivated with greater care, or has been worse perverted and abused than the common vine. By cultivation it sprouts into endless varieties, differing in form, color size and flavor of truit, and in respect to the hardness of its constitution." There is one sate, sure and easy method of pruning our American vines. First, give them proper support. Second, keep free from dead wood Third, cut last year's growth back to third or tourth bud. Some cut longer, others ever shorter. Notice how many bunches of fruit are produced on the wood left and you will have a safe guide. Fourth, check or encour-

A Ball-Room Predicament.

But of all things at a New York ball, being "stuck" is the worst, and the un-fortunate to whom this happens ever after regards it as a black letter evening in his calendar. It is caused by the absurd custom of its being consid ered rude and not "the thing," after having a dance, to take one's partner to her seat and there leave her; but one must keep with her until claimed by ome one else, come he sooner or com he later. With a stranger or debutante it is usually the latter. Naturally farorites in society and "beauties" see no reason for a change, as they never feel the fetter; but every girl is not a favorite, and to them the change would be a cause for rejoicing. As it stands at present it has caused many a young girl just out, and perhaps shy and knowing few men, to pass a very soli-tary and stupid evening, for a man once "stuck," unless very verdant, takes care it never happens again. When the hackneyed conversation between the "stuck" ones returns to the weather for the third or fourth time things are getting desperate, and the needed relief, or rather release, often only comes with the supper call. Why the English system of returning one's partner to her seat or chaperon and going one's way should not be introduced is hard to determine, or, taken in conjunction with the system of "turns," it would enliven the evening for many a wall flower, and perhaps have the effect of scattering the almost impenetrable phalanx of the army of martyrs who adorn the door.

In a London circus a wonderful horse named Blondin walks along a tight-rope nine inches in breadth, at a height of twenty feet from the ground. The orse, which mounts and descends a flight of stairs at each end of the rope, is led by its trainer, Signor Corradini, at first with the use of its eyes, afterward blindfolded. Underneath the rope a net is spread, so that in case of the animal missing its footing it would aot be injured.

A PRIVATE LETTER

A PRIVATE LETTER.

Probably no man is better known or more highly respected than Mr. Julian S. Carr, President of the Blackwell's Durham Tobacco Co., of Durham, N. C. In every tobacco store in the United States, and in many foreign countries, Blackwell's Durham Tobacco is sold, and it is a well-known fact that the sales of this Company largely exceed those of any other tobacco manufacturer. That such success has been obtained is due to the energy, integrity and ability of Mr. Carr, who has so successfully managed the affairs of the successfully managed the affairs of the Company. Such a letter as the following Company. Such a letter as the following, written by Mr. Carr to a personal friend whose only interest in the matter referred to was a desire to do a friendly act, is certo was a desire to do a friendly act, is certainly worthy of careful reading.

Durham, N. C., Feb. 25, 1885.

My Dear "Mac":—I have delayed writing to you, with reference to the Athlophoros remedy, until I could hear from a friend of mine, a gentleman of high character, who used Athlophoros at my suggestion with very great benefit. He is a tobacco manufacturer of high standing. I have waited to hear from him in order that I might use his name officially. I am satisfied, however, that he must be at the New Orleans Exposition, and my letters have failed to reach him. So I will not delay answering your letter longer. You have failed to reach him. So I will not delay answering your letter longer. You want to know whether Athlophoros is really as good as you thought when you so kindly sent me a couple bottles. I had a sister who was a victim of neuralgia and rheumatism. She suffered intensely, and her condition gave her family and friends much concern. Every known remedy was tried but without effect. When the tried, but without effect. When the bottles you sent me came, I sent one to my sister and one to my sister-in-law.

My sister was so encouraged from the use of this one bottle that I put her upon a thorough treatment of Athlophoros. I certainly owe you and Athlophoros a great debt of gratitude for the relief the remedy has given her. She has almost completely recovered from thousation so remedy has given her. She has almost completely recovered from rheumatism, so much so that she has stopped the use of Athlophoros and considers herself well. My sister-in-law, to whom I gave the other bottle, was suffering fearfully with neuralgia, she had become unconscious from the pain—the Athlophoros relieved her entirely. I gave a bottle of Athlophoros to an intimate friend who suffered such into an intimate friend who suffered such intense pain in his head that he looked as if his eyes would start from their sockets, and by its use he has been greatly benefited, and tells me that he received such relief from it that he orders it by the box and keeps it at all times in his house is never without it—can't afford to be, this is the gentleman to whom I wrote. I wanted to send with this his opinion in his own handwriting, but as I stated he must still be at New Orleans. A very worthy colored man, a house carpenter, Jim Whitted by name, lives in the house adjoining "my man of all work." One morning my man told me that Jim was suffering so intensely from rheuma-tism that the neighborhood was disturbed day and night by his cries of agony. Wishing to test Athlophoros before my own eyes on a genuine case of acute rheu-matism, I wrote the Athlophoros Commatism, I wrote the Athlophoros Com-pany stating Jim's condition, and offering, if they would send me the remedy, to see that it had a fair trial in his case. I conthat it had a fair trial in his case. I confess, with all my confidence in Athlophoros, I doubted whether it could help Jim, but it was faithfully tried and I think the proudest man now in all this community is Jim Whitted. He claims to be entirely relieved of all his rheumatism and not only that, but he says the stiffness in his joints, which came with the rheumatism, has all been removed. Within thirty hours after he began to use Athlophoros, he felt like another person. These instances have all come under my personal knowledge. I am very slow to speak of or recommend any medicine, but when a remedy has the virtue and the merit that I believe Athlophoros has, I cannot hesitate to recommend it. I have given you facts—don't they answer your question fully? Yourstruly, J.S. Cars.
